A Void - French author Georges Perec's 400-page novel where a bunch of buddies search for their missing chum Anton Vowl, an adventure yarn parodying genres like crime noir and Gothic horror, all with a variety of spins on style and wordplay - verbal monkeyshines, linguistic antics, quizzical phonetic pranks, rhetorical roguery.

the company of other writers such as Jacques Roubaud, Harry Mathews, Italo Calvino, and Marcel Bénabou; and in 1969 he produced one of the most remarkable illustrations of Oulipian constraint-based poetics, A Void, a 300-page novel written without the letter E. Briefly described, A Void presents itself as a detective novel, the central dilemma of which is the disappearance of the E from the alphabet. That absence marks the novel in various ways.

A Void by Georges Perec - Professional Moron
A Void was the brainchild of author George Perec, who wrote La disparition (disappearance) in 1969, and was later translated to English in 1994. Why a writer would take on such an unusual challenge defies explanation. A good author should add to his repertoire of tools, not subtract them, right?

Letter 'E ...

A Void is an unnerving but insanelly compelling work, and one which is rather hard to compare with anything else. It does have some similarities with Perec's later classic Life A User's Manual, but it will never be as popular. Adair deserves special praise for translating a work which poses such unusual difficulties; one almost feels he should have been credited as a co-author.
